

They provide a wide range of health-related services to communities, typically integrating several types of services in the same site, allowing better attention to the breadth of family needs. As with the SCHIP program, community health centers will need to strengthen the evidence base documenting their important role in improving health and broadening political will in support of their key efforts.

A recent commentary in Ambulatory Pediatrics reviewed one of the Institute of Medicine reports on health insurance¹⁰—documenting once again the importance of coverage for children and families.¹¹ The next months and years will need dedicated and focused work by researchers, health policy analysts, and child health professionals toward maintaining these key programs for the health of children and youth—and expanding them to the clear goal of universal health coverage for all children and families.

James M. Perrin, MD
Editor in Chief

REFERENCES

1. Rosenbaum S. Medicaid. New Engl J Med. 2002;346:635–640.
2. Simpson L, Zodet MW, Chevarley FM, et al. Health care for children and youth in the United States: 2002 report on trends in access, utilization, quality, and expenditures. Ambul Pediatr. 2004;4:131–153.
3. Cunningham PJ, Reschovsky JD, Hadley J. SCHIP, Medicaid expansions lead to shifts in children's coverage. Washington, DC: Center for Studying Health System Change; December 2002. Issue Brief #59
4. Toner R, Pear R. Cutbacks imperil health coverage for States' poor. New York Times. April 28, 2003:1.
5. Felland LE, Kinner K, Hoadley JF. The Health Care Safety Net: Money Matters but Savvy Leadership Counts. Washington, DC: Center for Studying Health System Change; August 2003. Issue Brief #66.
6. Pear R. Expanded right to Medicaid shatters the link to welfare. New York Times. March 6, 1988:1.
7. Kronebusch K. Medicaid for children: Federal mandates, welfare reform, and policy backsliding. Health Affairs. 2001;20:97–111.
8. Hill C, Reno V. Children's Stake in Social Security. Washington, DC: National Academy of Social Insurance; February 2003. Social Security Brief #14.
9. Kempe A, Beaty BL, Barrow J, et al. Disenrollment from a State Child Health Insurance Plan: are families jumping S(c)HIP? Ambul Pediatr. 2004;4:154–161.
10. Fairbrother G. Commentary on IOM Report: health insurance is a family matter. Ambul Pediatr. 2003;3:66–67.
11. Institute of Medicine. America's Children: Health Insurance and Access to Care. Washington, DC: National Academy Press; 1998.

Announcement

Book Reviews in Ambulatory Pediatrics

We are pleased to announce that Ambulatory Pediatrics will now publish reviews of books of interest to clinicians, educators, and researchers in general pediatrics. We are also delighted to announce that Ruth Etzel has agreed to serve as the Book Review Editor and lead this enhancement for our readers. If you have recently published a book, please send a copy to our Book Review Editor, Ruth Etzel, at the address below. If you have recently reviewed a book and would like to submit it for consideration, or if you are interested in writing a book review, please contact her by e-mail at RETZEL@EARTHLINK.NET

Ruth A. Etzel, MD, PhD
Alaska Native Medical Center
4320 Diplomacy Drive
Suite 2630
Anchorage, AK 99508
Phone 907-729-3250
FAX 907-729-3265